Marine Corps Air Stations New River, Cherry Point and a reserve unit from New York participated in a joint exercise initiated by the commanding general of the 2nd Marine Aircraft Wing, Maj. Gen. Jon M. Davis, Feb. 27 - March 3.

Months of planning prepared the aviators for a demonstration of the MAW's and reserve's readiness, showing the capability to conduct a long-range deployment of MV-22B Ospreys utilizing KC-130J tanker support.

While still deployed overseas, Marine Medium Tiltrotor Squadron 365 volunteered for the mission slated just a short time after its return home.

Making stops in Key West, Fla., Corpus Christi, Texas, and Pensacola, Fla., the Marines conducted long-range flights, aerial refueling and static displays for students of two of the Navy and Marine Corps' major aviation schools.

Marine Aerial Refueler Transport Squadron 252 from Cherry Point and VMGR-452, a reserve unit out of New York, joined VMM-365 in the cross-country detachment.

"I think integration with the reserves and the active duty C-130 squadrons was a key ingredient to demonstrating Marine Corps overall aviation readiness," said Lt. Col. Craig C. LeFlore, commanding officer of VMM-365. "It provided proof of concept."

Some Marines thought the evolution in its entirety brought the members of the squadron closer as a team.

Elements of Marine Attack Squadron 542 attached to the 26th Marine Expeditionary Unit have recently flown combat operations in support of Joint Task Force Odyssey Dawn.

In response to violent and inhumane acts by Col. Moammar Gadhafi, the dictator of Libya, the United Nations responded to pleas of help from the Libyan people and the Arab world, adopting U.N. Security Council Resolution 1973, authorizing member states to take all necessary measures to protect civilians from Gadhafi's assaults.

Joint Task Force Odyssey Dawn, which includes the 26th MEU, began enforcing the resolution, attacking enemy anti-aircraft and ground units.

"Our primary concern was ensuring the people inside Ajdubiya were safe from Gadhafi's artillery and tanks," said Col. Mark J. Desens, commanding officer of 26th MEU, referring to a Libyan city under siege by Gadhafi's forces. "Everything we are seeing following these strikes indicates that his forces are now less capable of threatening the town than before."

President of the United States Barack H. Obama said the international community had a moral obligation to protect the people of Libya.

USS Kearsarge, At sea – Marines from the 26th Marine Expeditionary Unit along with MV-22 Osprey tiltrotor aircraft and CH-53E Super Stallion helicopters conducted a tactical recovery of aircraft and personnel, or TRAP, mission after a U.S. Air Force F-15 Eagle crashed east of Benghazi, Libya, March 21.

The cause of the crash of the F-15 is unknown at this time. However, the TRAP force quickly retrieved one of the pilots, who is in good condition, according to Navy Lt. Lauren A. Weber, a doctor assigned to the 26th MEU. The other pilot is safely back in the hands of the U.S. military after being rescued by Libyan citizens. The aircraft was destroyed. The names of the pilots are not being released pending next-of-kin notification.

The Marine Corps last conducted a high-profile TRAP mission in 1995 when CH-53E Super Stallion helicopters assigned to the 24th MEU launched from the flight deck of USS Kearsarge to rescue U.S. Air Force Capt. Scott O'Grady in Bosnia.

Competition gets rolling for Cherry Point Half Marathon

PAUL D. KELLY
MCAS CHERRY POINT

On Saturday, runners will experience a newly-certified distance road race in the Cherry Point Half Marathon. For the first time, the event will feature a wheelchair division and already the response to the new division has been strong.

Leading the runners will be a group of athletes with disabilities competing using hand-crank wheelchairs. The event has attracted local wheelers and some from nearby states to the relatively flat and scenic course offered by the Cherry Point Half.

The undisputed division favorite in this year's race will be former Cherry Point Marine David Swaim of Strasburg, Va. Swaim returns to Cherry Point after winning the division in the Myrtle Beach Marathon Feb. 19 and the Crystal Coast Half Marathon March 5. With a new, aerodynamic racing chair, Swaim completed the Crystal Coast event in a blistering 41:17. A paraplegic as a result of a weight lifting accident, Swaim, at age 64, will likely complete the half marathon before many able-bodied runners reach the 10K mark. A veteran of more than 100 marathons, the former Marine was stationed at Cherry Point and assigned to Marine Attack Squadron 121 during his service in the 1960s.

The heated competition will be for the second place title in the wheelchair division. Bruce Newman, of Stella, N.C., is a retired Army officer and has been engaged in wheelchair racing for only two years. Already however, he has made an impressive showing in the sport, having won the division in the Space Coast Marathon, Cocoa, Fla., in November.

In the spirit of interservice rivalry, Newman will be challenged by Staff Sgt. Ryan Anderson, a combat wounded Marine with the Wounded Warrior Battalion-East at Camp Lejeune. Anderson will be competing in his third event when he races at Cherry Point. In his first race, the Marine Corps Half Marathon at Camp Lejeune last September, Anderson made a strong showing during the first half of the race. Only a mechanical problem with his loaner crank-chair caused him to fall back from the front-running wheelers. As a new contender and strong performer, the active-duty Marine is being eyed with respect by the other wheelers after finishing second in the recent Crystal Coast Half.

While serving with Company B, 6th Engineer Support Battalion, 4th Marine Logistics Group, in Al Anbar, Iraq, the Colonia, N.J., Marine was assigned to find and disarm improvised explosive devices. In his understated manner Anderson explains, "I was exposed to seven IEDs." As a result of those 'exposures,' he was diagnosed with a traumatic brain injury and medically evacuated. While recuperating at the Wounded Warrior Battalion-East, he has been placed on temporary additional duty at II Marine Expeditionary Force Headquarters at Lejeune. His indomitable spirit will make him a force with which to be reckoned at Cherry Point as he competes in a new, custom-fitted hand crank wheelchair recently provided to him by Hope for the Warriors.

The Jacksonville, N.C., based organization funded Anderson's crank-chair through private donations raised by Team Hope for the Warriors. The team consists of competitive athletes who raise funds by participating in events throughout the country. Monies raised go to sponsor their combat wounded teammates, as well as support other programs from Hope for the Warriors. These programs offer a full cycle of support that includes immediate needs financial assistance and continue through A Warrior's Wish, Warrior's Hope & Morale events, Above & Beyond, spouse/caregiver scholarships, and more.

Several members of Team Hope for the Warriors will compete in the Cherry Point event including crank-chair athlete Paul Kelly, of Beaufort, N.C. A Department of Defense civilian engineer at Cherry Point, Kelly is a volunteer for the group and regularly trains at Cherry Point. Together with his wife Sally, a retired quality assurance specialist from Fleet Readiness Center-East, the couple has raised more than $31,000 through their 2008 Miles of Hope fundraising campaign. The money the couple raises through that campaign is all donated to Hope for the Warriors. Kelly, a tetraplegic most of his adult life, has completed 15 marathons and 22 half marathons as part of Team Hope for the Warriors since the beginning of the campaign in 2007.

The Butterfly

LT. CMDR. PERRY HAAGAN
2ND MAW DEPUTY CHAPLAIN

A man found a cocoon of a butterfly. One day, a small opening appeared. He sat and watched the butterfly for several hours as it struggled to force its body through a little hole. Then it seemed to stop making any progress. It appeared as if it had gotten as far as it could, and it could go no further.

So the man decided to help the butterfly. He took a pair of scissors and snipped off the remaining bit of the cocoon. The butterfly then emerged easily. But it had a swollen body and small, shriveled wings. The man continued to watch the butterfly because he expected that, at any moment, the wings would enlarge and expand to be able to support the body, which would contract in time. Neither happened.

In fact, the butterfly spent the rest of its life crawling around with a swollen body and shriveled wings. It never was able to fly.

What the man, in his kindness and haste, did not understand was that the restricting cocoon and the struggle required for the butterfly to get through the tiny opening were God's way of forcing fluid from the body of the butterfly into its wings so that it would be ready for flight once it achieved its freedom from the cocoon.

Sometimes struggles are exactly what we need in our lives. If God allowed us to go through our lives without any obstacles, it would cripple us. We would not be as strong as what we could have been. We could never fly. So when you find yourself in the midst of a trial, realize that God can use those very same trials to shape you into the person he wants you to be, and who you really can be.

God knows that the person we can become is far greater and more beautiful than anything we could have dreamt or imagined. We just have to trust that God knows what he is doing, but that is never easy.

God has always been more concerned with our character and our faith rather than our material comfort because He knows that while one is temporary, the other is eternal. We read in the Book of 1 Peter, "In this you greatly rejoice, though now for a little while you may have had to suffer grief in all kinds of trials. These have come so that your faith - of greater worth than gold, which perishes even though refined by fire - may be proved genuine and may result in praise, glory and honor when Jesus Christ is revealed." When we realize that God allows the trials to come for our ultimate good, they are that much easier to endure.

It is also important to point out that while God allows us to go through struggles and doesn't intervene, that doesn't mean we should do the same. It is true that our struggles can make us stronger and help us become all God intends for our lives, but we need to be careful not to push the analogy too far. We are not butterflies, and we are not

Finances in separation or divorce

CAPT. AARON F. DEBRUIN
JOINT LAW CENTER

There is no doubt that the military lifestyle puts an immense amount of strain on marriages. With deployments occurring on a regular basis, many marriages break under the stress involved. There are common misconceptions about the amount of financial support Marines are required to provide for their spouses and children during the separation and divorce process when there is no written agreement or court order establishing the financial support amount.

Chapter 15 of the Marine Corps Manual for Legal Administration (LEGADMINMAN) establishes the amount of financial support Marines are required to pay to their non-military spouse when there is no written agreement between the parties or court order establishing the financial support amount. The chapter is punitive, which means that if you violate it you may be punished under the Uniform Code of Military Justice. The order takes effect after the spouse makes a complaint to the command of inadequate support. Once any member of the command receives a complaint, they are obligated by the order to inform the commanding officer. Commanding officers are specifically mentioned as those with special court-marital convening authority or higher.

The Marine will be given the opportunity to speak to a legal assistance attorney concerning spousal support. Chapter 15 of the LEGADMINMAN breaks down the support amount into tables that are fairly easy to figure out. In most cases, the Marine will be providing the spouse with a portion of the basic allowance for housing. The percentage of BAH the Marine must pay in support increases with the number of dependants, or children, who live with the complaining spouse.

Some Marines have blended families where one or both of the spouses have children from a previous relationship. Marines are not responsible for providing support for their stepchildren. However, the Marine is required to provide financial support for adopted children. If the Marine has children from a previous relationship, they are still responsible for providing support to those children. The other dependants, not from the current marriage, will reduce the percentage of BAH paid to the current spouse.

I see the following scenario all the time. The spouse still lives in base housing and the Marine is living in the barracks. In this situation, the Marine may not be required to provide financial support to their spouse. Since the spouse is living in base housing and the entire BAH is going toward the government quarters, the financial support requirement may be met. However, in some cases, the command may still require the Marine to pay a portion of his base pay plus the BAH already going toward base housing as long as the total value of support does not exceed 1/3 of gross pay and allowances. However, if the Marine is living in base housing and the spouse has moved out,

Job Title: Avionics Technician
Unit: Marine Attack Squadron 542
Hometown: Beckley, W.Va.
Date Joined: March 9, 2009

What's your job?

I repair communications, weapons and navigations systems on the AV-8B Harrier.

What's your favorite aspect of your job?

My favorite aspect of my job is going on deployments and interacting with pilots. On deployments, we get to travel a lot and talking with the pilots is cool because we get to find out what it's like to fly.

What's the most challenging part?

The most challenging part of the job is learning how to work with all of the systems. To find a problem in the Harrier, it's like trying to solve a riddle just to find where the problem is.

How does your job support the mission of 2nd MAW and MCAS Cherry Point?

The Harrier is a useful, versatile aircraft that can serve a variety of missions almost anywhere. Wherever they're flying, we'll be there to fix them and keep them flying.

How does your job differ from garrison to the field?

The main difference between garrison and field is operational tempo.

MACG-28 Marines step onto Afghan soil with eyes on Afghan skies

LANCE CPL. SAMANTHA H. ARRINGTON
2nd MAW (fwd)

CAMP LEATHERNECK, Afghanistan – Marine Air Control Group 28 has arrived in Afghanistan and is ready to provide command and control for the 2nd Marine Aircraft Wing (Forward) and its coalition partners.

MACG-28 will operate as the communications medium between the aviation and ground combat elements in the Regional Command Southwest area of operations.

“We have more than 400 Marines out here,” said Lt. Col. Thomas P. Bajus II, the detachment commander for MACG-28. “There are Marines in the tactical air command center, direct air support center, air traffic control, tactical air operation center and communications support.”

MACG-28, headquartered out of Marine

Corps Air Station Cherry Point, N.C., is a compilation of multiple squadrons ranging in duties from tactical air control to communications. For the Afghanistan deployment, the group will serve under a single detachment commander.

Bajus explained that with the diversity of specialties in MACG-28, his Marines support 2nd MAW (Fwd.) not only in Camp Leatherneck and Camp Bastion, but throughout the Regional Command Southwest’s area of operations. For this reason, Bajus said the group will be especially reliant on its noncommissioned officers’ leadership for success.

“With everyone spread out, small-unit leadership is crucial to our success,” said Bajus. “The NCO leadership really plays a strong role in what we do. We made sure we got the maximum out of our deployment training, so we could come out to Afghanistan and be able to execute.”

Bajus said the group will separate the deployment into four phases. The first phase’s goal was a successful turnover with MACG-38. With that completed, Bajus said his Marines are now moving on to phase two.

“The second goal is to sustain and master our procedures as we continue aviation command and control for 2nd MAW (Fwd.),” said Bajus. “For the third phase, we will look at our positions and evaluate how we are going to improve and make our procedures faster and more efficient.

“The final phase is once we know our improvements, capture those improvements and give a good turn-over back to MACG-38,” Bajus added.

While the group is deployed to Afghanistan, its primary mission will be to control the skies and assets of 2nd MAW (Fwd.).

“We have trained hard,” said Sgt. Maj. Kenneth A. Lange, the sergeant major for MACG-28. “I have full trust and confidence in each and every one of them.”

Marines of MACG-28 said that even though the deployment will come with challenges, they too are confident of their abilities.

“I feel really good about this deployment, it’s an honor to be out here,” said Cpl. Cristy A. Rodriguez, the supply chief for MACG-28. “We are a part of something bigger. It is very humbling.”

MIYAKO, Japan — As a group of the 31st Marine Expeditionary Unit's CH-46E Sea Knight helicopters made their way along the northeast Japanese coast March 21, the destruction caused by the recent 9.0 earthquake and following tsunami became apparent.

Along with the 31st MEU, the III Marine Expeditionary Force and its subordinate units are supporting the relief efforts through command and control, aviation and logistics assets.

During the recent humanitarian aid and disaster relief mission, Marines with Marine Medium Helicopter Squadron 262 (Reinforced), 31st MEU, delivered 800 gallons of water and 768 blankets to the Japan Self-Defense Force to distribute throughout the area.

"It feels good to finally get to do what we are trained for," said Capt. Cory J. Jobst, a CH-46E Sea Knight helicopter pilot with HMM-262 (Rein.), 31st MEU, before the operation took place. "I am really looking forward to the chance to help out the Japanese people."

The actions of the Marines with the 31st MEU do more than just improve the lives of those affected by the quake and tsunami; they help maintain the long-standing alliance between the U.S. and Japan.

"This shows the Japanese people how much good we are capable of," said Harris. "It shows them Marines care, and are willing to lend a helping hand."

Navy and Marine Corps involvement in the relief mission is part of a larger U.S. government response, coordinated through the U.S. Department of State, aiding the government of Japan in its ongoing relief efforts.

As part of Operation Tomodachi, the 31st MEU is ready to support our long-time Japanese partners and to provide assistance when called upon.

"This evolution offers awesome training for the pilots," said Sgt. Linda A. Scott, an Osprey mechanic with VMM-365. "But it is also a great way to build camaraderie and esprit de corps among the enlisted."

Staff Sgt. Shawn M. Bryant, an aerial observer with VMM-365, said the trip provided Marines unique opportunities to train and see different parts of the country.

"The experiences Marines get from detachments like this are the ones they tell their grandchildren about," said Bryant.

The mission provided more than just training to pilots. Time in the air gives crew chiefs more practice in their jobs, and mechanics have more work once grounded as well.

"When it comes to training for mechanics, junior Marines learn they are the ones responsible for the mechanical safety of the aircraft," said Sgt. Kenny Van Order, a maintenance controller with VMM-365. "It doesn't matter if a field grade officer wants to fly. If there is a safety concern with the aircraft, it's the mechanics job to tell that pilot he cannot fly."

As the aviation assets for the current and future needs of the Corps modernize, the MV-22B Osprey will remain the backbone of the assault support community.

"Its speed, range, payload and overall survivability is what makes it the most exciting development in aviation today," said LeFlore. "It gives the Marine Corps its over-the-horizon capability and maintains our ability to be expeditionary."

force is not our first choice, and it's not a choice that I make lightly," Obama said in a statement March 19. "But we cannot stand idly by when a tyrant tells his people that there will be no mercy, and his forces step up their assaults on cities like Benghazi and Misurata, where innocent men and women face brutality and death at the hands of their own government."

Maj. Gen. Jon M. Davis, commanding general of the 2nd Marine Aircraft Wing, said 2nd MAW aircraft are ready to accomplish any mission when unforeseen emergencies take place.

"We have a MEU air combat element off the coast of Libya," Davis said. "By every account, they're absolutely knocking it out of the park. We are sea-based, able to use the sea for maneuver space. We are tailored to support missions across the spectrum of military operations. They're making us all proud, showing the immense utility, flexibility, agility and professionalism of 2nd MAW units and the Marine Corps at large."

Sgt. Maj. Robert T. Roddy, sergeant major of VMA- 542, expressed pride in the role his Marines are playing in this operation.

"I am proud of our Marines with the 26th MEU for the hard work they are doing to support the mission," said Roddy. "I am excited for them to be able to use the training they have received in a real-world mission. We are keeping them in our prayers and expect nothing but the best from them."

God. We are created in the image and spirit of God. It is our responsibility to help and reach out to others in need, to "comfort those in any trouble with the comfort we ourselves have received from God." We can't, nor should we necessarily try to take someone's burdens from them - that would be like the man with the butterfly in the story. Instead, we should allow God to use us by coming alongside and providing comfort and encouragement while they go through their trials.

Let's use our trials to strengthen our wings so that we can learn to soar. Keep up the struggle and always keep pressing on toward the goal.

2nd Marine Aircraft Wing (Fwd) takes flight for Operation Rawhide II

CPL. RASHAUN X. JAMES
2nd MAW (Fwd)

CAMP BASTION, Afghanistan – Recently an operation bringing together five of the six functions of the aviation combat element began at Camp Bastion in the Regional Command Southwest area of operations in Afghanistan.

The initiative, Operation Rawhide II, was intended to interdict and disrupt enemy activity along the Pakistan border in anticipation of an expected spring offensive by insurgent forces. The various squadrons of 2nd Marine Aircraft Wing (Forward) were tasked with providing close air support to ground forces in the region.

For Operation Rawhide II, 2nd MAW (Fwd.) brought out nearly all of its assets. “We’ve used five of the six functions of Marine aviation, those being assault support, offensive air support, electronic warfare, control of aircraft and missiles, and aerial reconnaissance,” said Lt. Col. Larry G. Brown, the future operations officer for 2nd MAW (Fwd.). “Almost everyone in the wing had a part in this. Joint Helicopter Force Afghanistan, from the United Kingdom, contributed several refuelers which helped out significantly. This has been a huge operation for us.”

One of the main focuses of the operation was establishing coalition patrol bases to assess enemy activity near Afghanistan’s border with Pakistan, explained Maj. Amy A. Kellstrand, a future operations planner for 2nd MAW (Fwd.). Kellstrand was one of several planners involved with forecasting the possible challenges and effects of Operation Rawhide II.

“One of the key parts of the operation is setting up patrol bases to support the ground combat element,” Kellstrand said. “It’s all about being in locations where we think we can have the most influence on enemy activity. Certain areas near the border with Pakistan are havens for weapons smuggling and drug activity.”

Kellstrand stressed that having coalition forward arming and refueling points located in key locations within the area of operations cuts down on the time Marine Corps and coalition aircraft need to refuel and rearm, which means more sorties striking enemy positions and more aircraft in position to support the troops on the ground.

“Having the FARPs out there has cut ordnance reload and refueling times significantly,” Kellstrand said.

Squadrons deployed to Afghanistan from across the United States have joined for the operation. Marine Unmanned Aerial Vehicle Squadron 2 out of Marine Corps Air Station Cherry Point, N.C., has provided ground forces with aerial reconnaissance; MCAS New River-based Marine Heavy Helicopter Squadron 461 and Marine Medium Tiltrotor Squadron 264 have served roles in transport and resupply, and casualty evacuations and leaflet drops, respectively; and Marine Light Attack Helicopter Squadron 169, out of Camp Pendleton, Calif., and Marine Fighter Attack Squadron 122, out of MCAS Beaufort, S.C., supported with offensive air support.

“Operation Rawhide II is going extremely well,” Kellstrand said. “The Marines and the units involved know how to make things happen no matter what the situation.”

Brown went on to explain how the different wing assets were used in the operation, but gave special praise to Marine Wing Support Squadron 373, based out of MCAS Miramar, Calif., and Marine Air Control Group 28 from MCAS Cherry Point.

“The unsung heroes of all this are the Marines of MWSS-373 and MACG-28,” Brown said. “They have been phenomenal. The only reason we are able to be expeditionary is because of the support squadron’s ability to build runways and FARPs to support the rest of the wing. Without MACG-28 coordinating and controlling air space, flight missions would not be possible.”

Brown said that Operation Rawhide II will continue to be a major focus of effort in Regional Command Southwest for some time and to keep the 2nd MAW (Fwd.) operational planners, tactical air control center personnel, and the entire Wing busy for quite some time.

Sgt. Joseph W. Meccico, a crew chief with Marine Medium Tiltrotor Squadron 264, communicates with the flight crew of an MV-22B Osprey during takeoff from Camp Bastion, Afghanistan, in support of Operation Rawhide II March 18. Operation Rawhide II is intended to interdict and disrupt enemy activity along the Pakistan border in anticipation of an expected spring offensive by insurgent forces.

National Capitol Region guard Willie Nathan looks to inbound the ball in a round-robin game against Marine Corps Base Camp Lejeune during the East Coast Regional Basketball Tournament at the Marine Dome March 17-19. NCR is made up of Washington D.C. area Marine Corps commands to include Quantico, last year's defending champions. NCR won the tournament in the final game of the single elimination tournament against Marine Corps Air Station New River 86-70.

East Coast Marines showcase basketball prowess

Pfc. Cory D. Polom
MCAS Cherry Point

Marine Corps installations from along the East Coast sent their most talented basketball players to Marine Corps Air Station Cherry Point for the East Coast Regional Basketball Tournament held at the Cherry Point Marine Dome March 17-19.

"This tournament is held every year a few days before the start of the All-Marines team tryout camp," said Gil George, assistant athletic director for Cherry Point. "The five teams play for the championship, but the key reason for this tournament is to give the coaches a view of players they may want to see more at the camp."

This year's tournament participants were Marine Corps Base Camp Lejeune, MCAS New River, MCAS Cherry Point, Tri-Command and National Capitol Region.

Tri-Command consists of Marines and Sailors from Marine Corps Recruit Depot Parris Island, MCAS Beaufort and Naval Health Clinic Beaufort, S.C., and NCR represents Marines from MCB Quantico and Marine Barracks 8th & I.

The tournament started with round-robin play to set up seeding for a single elimination tournament.

"Coming into the tournament I knew that NCR was going to be the toughest competition," said John Revere, a captain and a starting guard for the New River team.

"Last year the Quantico team destroyed us, so we were looking for revenge against their players coming into this tournament."

The final game came down to NCR and New River.

"We were coming into this game just looking to keep it close and to play this game our way," said Latimer Amonte, a guard for New River. "The All-Marines selection wasn't even in my head. I was in Afghanistan last year, so I was coming in here to this tournament to do my best and bring home gold for New River."

Amonte's dream seemed within reach at halftime, with NCR up by just seven points.

"I could not have asked more from my teammates in this first half," said Revere. "NCR has blown everyone out by halftime, and we are playing hard and I will bet anything that seven point deficit will be gone within the first few minutes."

Revere was right – within the first two minutes NCR's seven-point deficit was gone and New River had taken the lead.

But in the end, NCR's streaking offense was too much for New River as they fell 86-70.

"Both teams played extremely well, and all week we have had the honor of watching amazing game after amazing game," said George.

Pfc. Cory D. Polom

Marine Corps Air Station New River's forward Joel Pierce shoots over National Capitol Region forward Robert Brooks in the championship game of the East Coast Regional Basketball Tournament at the Marine Dome March 17-19. New River came up short, losing to NCR in the championship game 86-70. Pierce was one of six selected for the All-Marine Team camp, which will take place at Marine Corps Base Camp Pendleton, Calif., April 10-18.

Pfc. Cory D. Polom

National Capitol Region guard Chris Harris fights to put up a layup in his team's semi-final game against Tri-Command during the East Coast Regional Basketball Tournament at the Marine Dome March 17-19. Comprised of several players from last year's Quantico championship team, NCR came into the tournament predicted win and delivered, beating New River in the championship game 86-70.

"I AM NUMBER FOUR" (PG-13)

"I Am Number Four" is a science fiction thriller about a group of alien teenagers who have escaped the destruction of their home planet and are hunted on Earth by a hostile species.

Alex Pettyfer ("Wild Child") plays John Smith, a 15-year-old alien who must save the planet from its enemies.

John is an extraordinary young man and the fourth of nine aliens who are fugitives on the run from ruthless enemies sent to destroy them and their planet Lorien.

Forced to flee their home planet and hide on Earth, they are being hunted and killed in ascending order according to number.

John travels from town to town, with his guardian, Henri, played by Timothy Olyphant ("A Perfect Getaway"), changing his identity, always being the new kid on the block.

Masking his true identity and passing as a typical student, John tries to blend into a small Ohio town and school.

While there, he encounters unexpected, life-changing events like powerful new abilities and connections to the others who share his incredible destiny.

John also experiences his first love, Sarah, played by Dianna Agron ("Burlesque").

Eluding a deadly enemy who is seeking to destroy him – three like him have already been killed – his number seems to be up.

Also starring are Teresa Palmer ("The Sorcerer's Apprentice") as Number Six; Jake Abel ("The Lovely Bones") as Mark; Kevin Duran ("Robin Hood") as the Mogadorian Commander; and Jeff Hochendoner ("The Next Three Days") as Sheriff James.

Director D. J. Caruso ("The Salton Sea," "Disturbia," "Eagle Eye") tackles aliens and outer-space villains with the help of computer-generated special effects.

The tale is based on the young adult science fiction novel by Pittacus Lore, pen name of authors James Frey and Jobie Hughes published in August 2010. The novel is the first of a proposed six-book series.

"I Am Number Four" is an action packed science fiction adventure for the teen fans with intense violence but little else on the plate.

"BATTLE: LOS ANGELES" (PG-13)

"Battle: Los Angeles" is a science fiction adventure about a worldwide alien invasion, focusing on just one platoon doing battle in Los Angeles.

For years, there have been documented cases of UFO sightings around world.

But in 2011, what were once just sightings become a terrifying reality when Earth is attacked by unknown forces.

As people everywhere watch the world's great cities fall, Los Angeles becomes the last stand for mankind in a battle no one expected.

Aaron Eckhart ("The Dark Knight," "Love Happens") stars as Michael Nantz, a battle-weary Marine staff sergeant, who is close to retirement.

Now it is up to him and his new platoon to draw a line in the sand as they must take on an enemy unlike any they have ever encountered before.

The platoon fights to prevent the city of Los Angeles from being overtaken by a race of highly advanced alien invaders.

The fearless Marines will not go down without a fight, pointing their weapons toward the sky and making one last stand for the entire human race.

The inexperienced 2nd Lt. William Martinez, played by Ramon Rodriguez ("Pride and Glory"), commands the platoon that includes:

Taylor Handley ("September Dawn") as Lance Cpl. Corey Simmons; Cory C. Hardrict ("Gran Torino") as Cpl. Jason Lockett; Adetokumboh M. Cormak as corpsman Jibril Adukwu; and popular R&B musician Ne-Yo ("Stomp the Yard") as Cpl. Kevin Harris.

Michelle Rodriguez ("Avatar," "Machete") co-stars as Air Force Tech. Sgt. Elena

Santos, who is sent into the area to do reconnaissance.

Also appearing as rescued civilians Michele and Joe are Bridget Moynahan ("Noise," "Unknown") and Michael Pena ("Observe and Protect").

Director Jonathan Liebesman ("Darkness Falls," "The Killing Room," "The Texas Chainsaw Massacre: The Beginning") got plenty of help from the Department of Defense and the Marine Corps in making his battle scenes seem realistic.

Maybe that is why the movie plays a little like a recruitment film for the military.

"Battle: Los Angeles" is supposed to be an epic sci-fi action adventure that turned into a hollow disaster flick. Excluding the immense action and special effects throughout the film, the weak plot and characterizations leave the viewer uninterested.

"RED RIDING HOOD" (PG-13)

"Red Riding Hood" is a fantasy tale and a gothic retelling of the popular and classic children's fairy tale.

Set in a medieval village that is haunted by a werewolf, a young girl falls for an orphaned woodcutter, much to her mother's displeasure.

Amanda Seyfried ("Dear John," "Letters to Juliet," "Mamma Mia!") stars as Valerie, the title role of this modernized fable, who lives in a village that is stalked by a big bad werewolf who is terrorizing her village, and threatening to destroy the place.

Valerie is a beautiful young woman who is torn between two men. She is in love with Peter, a brooding outsider and poor woodcutter, played by Shiloh Fernandez ("Cadillac Records").

However, her parents have arranged her marriage to a wealthy suitor, Henri, played by Max Irons ("Being Julia").

Unwilling to go along with the arrangement her parents made, Valerie is planning to run away with Peter.

That plan is derailed when Valerie's older sister is killed by the mysterious werewolf that roams the dark forest surrounding their village.

Now the villagers are hungry for revenge and call for the help of a famed werewolf hunter.

Gary Oldman ("The Book of Eli") plays Father Solomon who is obsessed with ridding his village of evil, while all along the townspeople are hiding their own secrets and lies.

The arrival of Father Solomon brings unintended consequences, as he warns the villagers that the werewolf, who takes human form by day, could be one of them.

As the death toll rises with each full moon and panic grips the town, Valerie discovers that she has a unique connection to the beast.

Co-starring are Virginia Madsen ("Firewall") as Suzette, and Billy Burke ("Untraceable") as Cesaire, Valerie's parents; and Lukas Haas ("Inception") as Father Auguste.

The fabulous Julie Christie ("Finding Neverland") appears as Valerie's grandmother.

Catherine Hardwicke ("Twilight," "The Nativity Story," "Thirteen") directed this dark, sexy and creepy adaptation of the beloved old fairy tale by the Brothers Grimm and puts the focus on a young woman's independence, throwing in a love triangle, controlling parents and a werewolf.

Leonardo DiCaprio is involved as a producer of this unusual and gory vision of the 700-year-old legend.

"Red Riding Hood" is a super modern version of the old fable, yet presented in a medieval poor and brutal setting, a colorful and gorgeous cinematic presentation; however, this gothic imagining of the classic fairy tale is not intended or suited for impressionable young children.

This week in Marine Corps History

March 25, 1945

After 35 days of bitter fighting, the amphibious assault on the rocky fortress of Iwo Jima finally appeared to be over. But on the night of March 25, a 300-man Japanese force launched a vicious final counterattack in the vicinity of Airfield Number 2. Army pilots, Seabees and Marines of the 5th Pioneer Battalion and 28th Marine Regiment fought the fanatical Japanese force until morning but suffered heavy casualties – more than 100 killed and another 200 American wounded. Nearly the entire Japanese force was killed in the battle.

March 27, 1953

In the first full day of fighting, 2nd Battalion, 5th and 7th Marine Regiments counterattacked to regain enemy-held positions after the Chinese assaulted the previous evening of Outpost Vegas on Korea's western front. Companies E and F of 2nd Bn., 7th Marines, down to only three platoons between them, managed to regain partial control of Outpost Vegas that day.

How to Place a Windsock Free Classified Ad

Active duty, retired military personnel and their dependents may place classified ads in The Windsock at no charge. You must go to the Joint Public Affairs Office in Bldg. 4817 and fill out an ad request form.

There is a 20-word limit on military free ads and a two-ad (separate category) per household maximum per week.

Policy for Free Classified Ads

Providing free advertising for business ventures is prohibited by government printing regulations and conflicts with the civilian publisher's advertising (which pays for the entire Windsock.) Therefore, as stated on the free ad request form, free classified ads "...must not be of a commercial or business nature."

This includes baby-sitting, property for rent, and yard work. Such advertisements may only be run as paid ads. Likewise, ads promoting fund raising activities sponsored by any organization, or events for which a fee is charged, are also not authorized under the free ad provision.

The Windsock will only publish free ads for animals which the owner is giving away. Real estate for sale must be exclusively "By Owner."

Failure of an ad to appear in The Windsock usually indicates the submission did not meet the criteria for free publication.

- ▶ Deadline for submitting free classified ads is noon, Monday ◀
- ▶ When Monday is a Federal holiday, ads must be submitted by noon, Friday ◀
- ▶ To re-run, free ads must be resubmitted ◀
