

Combined Federal Campaign donation period nears end

CPL. SAMUEL A. NASSO

MCAS CHERRY POINT

As November approaches so does the time to be a good Samaritan and donate to the Combined Federal Campaign as the deadline to donate is Oct. 27.

The CFC is an annual fundraising campaign that focuses on providing financial support to local, national and international charities. For 50 years the CFC has been an avenue to raise money for thousands of charities that help people, animals and all varieties of causes around the world.

Even with the economy today, Bob Whitbeck, CFC coordinator and member of the local federal coordination committee, said she hopes the Marines and civilians at Cherry Point can still find a way to help their community.

"I do think that people are trying to be more careful with their money; it's tight for everybody," said Whitbeck. "But we hope that Cherry Point patrons realize that

A 2nd Marine Aircraft Wing MV-22B Osprey made history during a visit to the USS Wasp, Saturday, as the first Osprey to share an amphibious assault ship flight deck with the new F-35B Lightning II.

The event marked the first time these two modern platforms have met in an amphibious environment.

The Marine Corps variant of the F-35 Lightning II, the F-35B, recently began a series of landings aboard the USS Wasp, a U.S. Navy multipurpose amphibious assault ship. October 3 marked the beginning of a two-week trial period testing the aircraft's landing and take-off capabilities at sea.

The MV-22B flew Secretary of the Navy Ray Mabus to the USS Wasp to observe the exercises. The Osprey belongs to 2nd MAW's Marine Medium Tiltrotor Squadron 266, based at Marine Corps Air Station New River, N.C.

2nd MAW's F-35 training squadron, Marine Fighter Attack Training Squadron 501, is scheduled to receive the first F-35B at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., in November. This will mark the arrival of the first Marine Corps F-35B into the 2nd MAW fleet.

The F-35 will replace the Marine Corps' aging F/A-18 Hornet, AV-8B Harrier and EA-6B Prowler. The implementation of the F-35 strike fighter family will introduce multi-role, fifth-generation capabilities to the battlefield in the form of one common tactical fixed-wing aircraft.

This will reduce maintenance costs while ensuring the Marine Corps maintains the tactical aircraft dominance required to deter potential adversaries and protect the nation's interests.

HQMC announces changes to tuition assistance program

CPL. SAMUEL A. NASSO

MCAS CHERRY POINT

New requirements for eligibility and funding rates for the Marine Corps tuition assistance program went into effect with the publication of Marine Administrative Message 616/11 Monday.

In preparation for the changes the Cherry Point education office was required to put a hold on all Tuition Assistance requests received during Oct. 1-17. After the publication of MARADMIN 616/11, those applications began processing.

Any applications submitted prior to Oct. 17 are not required to meet the standards established by 616/11.

As of Oct. 1, eligibility and funding rates for TA changed.

A key purpose in the new program is directed to more specifically focus TA utilization in the Marine Corps to first-term Marines interested in initiating higher educational pursuit, according to the MARADMIN.

The new approach recognizes the education funding options, such as GI Bills, that are intended to support

COVE CITY, N.C. – Not knowing quite how to feed the pony yet, 3-year-old Lily Kinsella, daughter of Staff Sgt. Patrick Kinsella, holds out one piece of straw at a time. Her father tries to show her the animal won't bite her fingers if she grabs more, but his efforts are in vain. He lets her keep playing, and neither Lily nor the pony seem to mind.

Feeding ponies was just one of many exciting activities during the "Pumpkin Fun Day" event at the McCoy Dairy Oct. 15. The once dairy farm, now dubbed "A Day at the Farm," hosts families to come out and enjoy hayrides, face paintings, pumpkin picking and more.

According to Marine Administrative Message 621/11, which was signed Wednesday and will be effective Monday, the Marine Corps Combat Utility Uniform will be worn sleeves down all year long. The message mentioned this change does not affect the timing of seasonal uniform change, which will be addressed in a future MARADMIN.

In a separate press release, Gen. James F. Amos, commandant of the Marine Corps, approved the wearing of memorial bracelets effective Tuesday, Oct. 18.

Bracelets memorializing prisoners of war, missing in action, killed in action and those who died of wounds or injuries sustained in a combat theater are authorized.

Last week, Amos met with his senior leaders at a Marine Corps General Officer Symposium, a group of general officers who make recommendations to the commandant. The issue of the bracelets was discussed and the decision was made to allow their wear.

"We are acknowledging the close personal nature of our 10 years at war and the strong bonds of fidelity that Marines have for one another, especially for those fellow Marines who we have lost," said Amos.

Further guidance that details standardization and uniformity will be distributed across the Marine Corps through official correspondence by the end of the week.

Chaplain's Corner:

When someone you love is hurting

LT. PHILIP J. NIETO

2ND MAW DEPUTY CHAPLAIN

When I was a pastor I encountered a lot of hurting people. When a person is hurting all they want is for the hurting to stop. They will seek answers in many places and yes, some of those places are the wrong places.

Hurting people can be found in all walks of life. They are those people we describe as having "hit rock bottom," or "made a mistake," or "took a wrong turn." Their offense can range from the very minor to the greatest. Some experience marital separation or divorce, others lose their jobs or take a cut in pay, others are entangled in an extramarital affair, and still others lie or cheat or get caught in an illegal or unholy act. Others are hurting not because of something they have done personally but because circumstances change and they get caught in the crossfire. I have seen it happen from a company merger to a church split. Still others are hurt because they become involved in the wrong set of friends/acquaintances.

Do you know any hurting people? The hurting can be our spouses, our kids, our friends, our pastors/chaplains, our leaders. They are people at work, in our family, and our churches. What can you do if you someone is hurting? The first and immediate action is for you to be a friend.

A friend has been described in many different ways. A friend knows all about you and loves you anyway. A friend steps in when the world steps out. A friend is one who never gets in the way, except when you are on your way down. A friend comes along side the hurting individual to offer support and encouragement. They help the struggler by assisting and comforting. They lighten their load, burden and pain. They bring refreshment like an ice-cold glass of tea on a scorching hot day.

Not only do you need to be a friend but a forgiver. Human beings have a great ability to recall old injustices, arguments, etc. and reopen old wounds. We tend to be unforgiving and unforgetting. One would think that Christians would be different. Often that is not the case. We often shoot our wounded.

What does a forgiver do? A forgiver releases the injustice, grudge, etc. In other words he lets it go. He or she doesn't keep a record of wrongs to be brought up in a later disagreement. A forgiver doesn't harbor grudges, forgets mistakes and lets the other person get on with life. Forgiveness means to cancel a debt in order to provide an opportunity for reconciliation of a broken relationship.

Being a friend sustains the hurting one in the present, being a forgiver wipes the slate clean of the past, but what about the future? You also have to be a future giver. What does a future giver do? A future giver restores a person's spirit. The Apostle Paul wrote to the Galatians, "Brothers, if someone is caught in any wrongdoing, you who are spiritual should restore such a person with a gentle spirit, watching out for yourselves so you won't be tempted also" (Galatians 6:1). The original Greek word in the text translated restore was used to describe the mending of a fisherman's nets in order to be used the next day.

Who do you know that needs a friend, a second chance or even a new future? For many hurting people you may be the person who can turn their life around by offering them friendship, forgiveness, and a hope filled future. Will you be that person?

The "Sparrow" air-to-air missile joined the Marine Corps air-ground team in 1952. Shown here, armed with four "Sparrow" missiles, is a Marine F3D-2M aircraft attached to Marine All-Weather Fighter Squadron 542 stationed at Marine Corps Air Station El Toro, Calif., in 1956. Air combat is constantly changing due to evolving technologies. During World War II, an air-to-air kill with rockets was unheard of. Later, guidance systems were married to rocket technology to create guided missiles, but machine guns were still the main air-to-air weapons during the Korean War. Today, fire-and-forget missiles and radar technology can destroy the targets before pilots see the enemy.

EOD came to Clinton to give workshops to the students and show them the real world application to what they were learning in robotics class.

EOD Marines display practicality of machines

MCAS CHERRY POINT

Cherry Point Headquarters and Headquarters Squadron Explosive Ordnance Disposal hosted a show-and-tell at Clinton High School Oct. 12. The EOD Marines showcased the practical application of robots in today's society.

"Having the Marines here shows the students the real world application to what they are learning," said Susan Kennedy, the robotics teacher at Clinton High School. "Being in a rural area they don't get the exposure that students would get in a big city. Experiences like this show what the military has to offer and gives them exposure to some outside influences."

The Marines used their time at Clinton to show off three different robots. Two of the three classes were from Clinton High, the third was the eighth grade class from Samson Middle School.

First was the 510 Packbot made by iRobot. The Packbot is a lightweight tracked robot, Newer versions of the Packbot can be carried by infantry units because of its size and mobility.

The second robot shown was the TALON, a military ordnance disposal robot, made by Foster-Miller. The TALON is used by EOD and bomb squads in the U.S. and deployed environments to unarm improvised explosive devices in areas like Iraq and Afghanistan.

The third robot was the Remotec ANDROS F6-A remote ordnance neutralization system. The RONS is an unmanned remote bomb disposal robot used by the military as well as SWAT teams. Because of its enormous size and weight the robot is only used in the U.S. The RONS weighs in at an estimated 485 pounds according to www.militaryfactory.com.

LANCE CPL. GLEN E. SANTY

The TALON, a military ordnance disposal robot, made by Foster-Miller, picks up a water bottle during the Explosive Ordnance Disposal demonstration of their military used robots.

"It's good for the students to see how programs in school can transfer into opportunities after they graduate," said Gunnery Sgt. Brian Diaz, an explosive ordnance disposal technician. "Hopefully this will inspire these students to stick with the robotics program and one day go into a company that builds or work with them."

During the show case the robotics students displayed their class projects.

The students revealed their latest project from the VEX robotics kit.

VEX robotics is a versatile kit that gives the students the basic tools to create their own robot according to the www.robotshop.com website.

"This is incredible," said Rozell Venaboe, a 17-year-old senior at Clinton and one of three inaugural students in Clinton's robotics class.

"We've built four robots so far and we built them from the bottom up. I really like it so far and I'm going to keep building them. Seeing what the Marines do has got me interested in the military."

Marines and members of the Cherry Point community drove their jalopies and Jaguars out to the air station flight line Oct. 9 for the Sports Car Club of America autocross.

The contestants varied in age and raced time-trials in cars ranging from souped-up speed demons to stock station wagons on a tightly coned track.

"When you're going down Highway 70, you're only going 55 mph," said Lance Cpl. Garrett A Chapman, a 23 year-old Tucson, Ariz., native who has been into cars since he was about 10 years old. "But out here, no one gets a ticket. You can pretty much take your car to its max."

Chapman, a ground support equipment representative with Marine Tactical Electronic Warfare Squadron 3, said he tries to get as many guys from his squadron to come out as possible.

"It's just a fun time; the cars don't need to have a whole lot of horsepower because the track isn't long and open," he said. "It's a lot of short corners and whatever it is, you could bring it out here and have a blast."

Tim Geary, approaches the starting line of the Cherry Point autocross hosted by the Sports Car Club of America at the Foxtrot Taxiway Oct. 9. The drivers and their cars varied from supped-up speed demons to strait off the assembly line.

Gwen Baake, 64, who goes by Gwennie, is a six-year autocross veteran and was a revered contestant at the autocross in her custom modified 2009 baby blue Mini Cooper.

"I always give the young guys a hard time," said Gwennie, who resides in Bohemia, N.C., with her husband, who worked on aircraft at Cherry Point as a contractor for 33 years. "This is kind of like coming home."

"It's a great site," Gwennie said of Cherry Point. "You can do more things in this space than most of the places in North Carolina."

Gwennie said she has done a lot of things in her life, but nothing else quite compares to autocross.

"It's the adrenaline.

It's conquering the track and there is always something that you could have done differently," she said. "You never get a perfect run."

The average time for most drivers was between 46 and 53 seconds. Even though most insisted they came out for each other's company, they kept an eye on the stopwatch display that clocked them when they crossed the finish line.

"The second you get done with a race, you want to know what everybody else ran," Chapman said. "I've gotten addicted to it."

Team of Marines integrates ground, air forces in Afghanistan

CPL. BRIAN ADAM JONES
2nd MAW (FWD)

CAMP LEATHERNECK, Afghanistan — As Marines, coalition and Afghan forces in the southwestern regional command of NATO's International Security Assistance Force patrol the Helmand River Valley, they do so knowing an overwhelming advantage is behind them.

With air assets led by 2nd Marine Aircraft Wing (Forward), the coalition can strike the enemy at will, move troops around the battlespace safely and quickly, and medically evacuate service members or Afghans in need.

The coordination and communication driving that advantage, however, is a hefty task for a team of 64 Marines.

They are the Marines of the direct air support center and they make their home in the combat operations center on the headquarters compound at Camp Leatherneck, where an array of monitors and maps allow the Marines to seamlessly integrate aviation assets with ground combat forces across the region.

"We fall under the Wing, but coexist with the ground element," said Capt. Andrea Goeman, a native of Byron Center, Mich., and the officer-in-charge of the Marine Air Support Squadron 1 detachment, which runs the center.

The center monitors all of 2nd Marine Aircraft Wing (Forward)'s helicopters, fixed-wing aircraft and remotely piloted drones, in addition to all other air assets operating in Helmand or Nimruz provinces. If it flies in Southwest Afghanistan, the center's Marines are watching it.

"The airspace here is some of the busiest in the world," Goeman said.

The center is responsible for processing immediate air support requests from ground forces, integrating aviation with ground fires, and procedurally controlling aircraft.

On hectic days the Marines can be responsible for as many as 20 aircraft at a time, according to 1st Lt. David Roodhouse, a senior air director for the center and a native of Cincinnati.

The secret to success lies in the center's ability to communicate, Roodhouse said.

The Marines not only communicate with each other, but also with infantry battalions, other government agencies, and the center's own air support liaison teams that work with the ground combat forces in Afghanistan.

They then relay requests to 2nd Marine Aircraft Wing (Forward)'s tactical air command center, which approves and assigns aircraft for assaults and medevacs.

The direct air support center communicates with forces across the region by way of instant messaging, allowing the Marines to process a large amount of information from several sources at once.

"[Chat rooms provide] our primary means of communicating with everyone who isn't flying," said Goeman. "The most challenging part of our job is prioritizing all the information we have. The individual tasks themselves aren't difficult, but once you put them together, it turns into managing chaos.

"Most people don't realize how complex it is to coordinate an airstrike or a medevac," said Goeman. "The Marines in [this center] really get to make a difference. The better we do our job, the quicker the ground forces get the support they need."

there are people who desperately need help around the world. If you know your financial situation is stable, why not help someone in need?"

Marines, Sailors and civilians can pay via payroll donation, cash, or write out a check. When using the payroll option, Marines can give a minimum of a dollar per month for a year and civilians can donate a dollar per pay check totaling 26 dollars for the year. Contributions through a one-time donation are welcome as well as unit fundraisers for the campaign.

Common nonprofit organizations, such as the American Red Cross and multiple wounded veteran charities receive major funding from CFC contributions.

In 2010 Cherry Point raised a total of $222,159 for the CFC, continuing a trend of raising more than $200,000 for more than a decade. The committee hopes to keep that tradition this year. However, the primary goal isn't about the money but to ensure 100 percent contact. All personnel should have the opportunity to make a donation, explained Whitbeck.

The Combined Federal Campaign needs your pledge, Whitbeck continued. There are more than 2,600 non-profit agencies in the Charity Listing supporting health and medical treatment, education and research, military member and veteran support agencies, child welfare agencies, animal protection and adoption services, religious charities, environmental concerns and much more.

"All of these agencies rely on your donations to continue providing services," said Whitbeck.

If anyone has questions in regards to the Cherry Point CFC contact Whitbeck at 466-4237.

a broader continuum of learning or achievement of education degrees or certification that maybe necessary for those Marines transitioning out of the Marine Corps after successful service.

A ceiling of $175 per semester hour for undergraduate courses, $225 per semester hour for graduate courses, and $3,500 per fiscal year are the new established department of defense TA rates. However, Marine Corps TA analysis confirms that most Marine TA users take on average 4 or 5 semester hours per year and therefore Marines will be restricted to five semester hours per year for TA reimbursement which amounts to $875 per year.

Per the MARADMIN, the Marine Corps TA program is intended to encourage personnel to voluntarily attend courses delivered by accredited, civilian educational institutions on campus, at resident centers, on military installations or through distance learning during their off-duty time.

Other funding options are available to Marines for their education with the availability of the Montgomery GI Bill and the Post 9/11 Bill, which allow greater choices in the academic institutions they can choose to attend.

The American Council on Education continues to evaluate military training for recommended college credits. These credits, coupled with the credit by exam program offered by the Defense Activity for Non-Traditional Education Support (DANTES), payment for college courses through the GI Bills, and TA afford all eligible Marines, the opportunity to start the process to pursue their higher educational goal. Maximizing educational opportunities for the greater number of Marines demands the scope of the Marine Corps TA program to be adjusted.

These policies will remain in effect until repealed and is subjective to the availability of funds. Additional guidelines of the policy exist on the MARADMIN and for more information refer to the MARADMIN, contact the Jerry Marvel Training and Education Building at 466-3500 or contact your education officer.

MALS-14 to get out and see what's available within a reasonable driving distance," said Lt. Col. Ryan Goulette, commanding officer of MALS-14. "My favorite part about today has been getting to meet the families and seeing everybody having a good time."

"This is our third year in a row coming here," said Kinsella, a 24th Marine Expeditionary Unit meteorology and oceanography chief with 24th MEU Command Element. "She loves it."

The event was hosted by Julia Bircher and her sister and business partner Melissa Barnett. The sisters grew up on the McCoy Diary and were the ones who decided to keep the farm alive by having events like Pumpkin Fun Day, Easter egg hunts and other features that are posted on www.adayatthefarm.com.

"I love seeing lots of kids out here and seeing everyone having a good time," said Bircher. "We love having the Marines out here and we do our best to give any military member a discount if possible."

After picking out a pumpkin the children took them to a work station to put straw hair and googly eyes on their pumpkins to decorate for the season.

"This is a great opportunity for the kids to get out and have fun," said Kinsella. "This is good for the kids because it helps them celebrate the season and breaks away from the typical begging for candy."

Marine convoy commander attributes unmanned aerial vehicles for saving his life

2nd MAV (FWD)

CAMP LEATHERNECK, Afghanistan — “Mission after mission we were exposed to a barrage of small arms fire, medium machine gun, heavy machine gun and sniper fire in addition to [roadside bombs] and [rocket and mortar attacks],” wrote 1st Lt. Marcos Garcia in a letter to Marine Unmanned Aerial Vehicle Squadron 3.

“We were forced to take similar routes due to their trafficability and the enemy exploited this.”

Garcia served as a convoy commander with 2nd Marine Logistics Group in Helmand province, Afghanistan for seven months.

According to his letter, his convoy suffered eight IED strikes, three artillery and rocket attacks, 10 small-arms-fire engagements and three complex ambushes while moving fuel trucks throughout southwestern Afghanistan. That was until VMU-3 got involved, using their RQ-7B Shadow drones to provide invaluable aerial surveillance and reconnaissance for Garcia and his Marines.

“The turn in events truly took place as soon as the Shadow supported our convoys,” wrote Garcia. “The Shadow is a remarkable asset that should be employed by any convoy traveling in a highly kinetic environment.”

VMU-3’s Shadows operate out of multiple sites in Helmand province, allowing the drones to surveil virtually every corner of the southwestern region under NATO’s International Security Assistance Force.

“Our primary goal is to provide information needed to make operations successful,” said Gunnery Sgt. Jarrad Demster, the staff non-commissioned officer in charge of VMU-3’s Camp Leatherneck detachment.

According to Demster, a native of Boise, Idaho, the survey footage collected by the Shadow is utilized by both ground and aerial forces to plan their actions and ensure they are conducted safely and intelligently.

Improvised explosive devices present a serious threat to ground forces that travel throughout southwestern Afghanistan. For Garcia and his Marines, the presence of the Shadow allowed them to mitigate the threat posed by roadside bombs.

“We can watch areas for strange behavior and use our camera to scan for signs of [improvised explosive devices],” said Demster. “This allows us to ensure convoy routes are safe for travel before the vehicles in the convoy even start their engines.”

On Aug. 28, Garcia and his Marines were attacked by more than 35 insurgents. The Shadow offered Garcia and joint tactical air controllers the information needed to place precise fire on enemy fighting positions.

Four Hellfire missiles and a 500-pound, laser-guided bomb quickly put a stop to the enemy assault.

“We aid attack aircraft and artillery assets to deliver more effective fire on targets,” said Demster. “We can also keep eyes on the target to ensure the success of the strike.”

Garcia wrote that he owes his life to the Shadow and the Marines of VMU-3.

“The Shadow has proven reliable, effective and ... devastating against enemy forces,” wrote Garcia. “I’m convinced that lives were saved [by this asset].”

“It feels great to be reminded how important our work is,” said Demster of Garcia’s letter. “My Marines got to hear the tangible result of their efforts and feel a sense of accomplishment.”

RQ-7B Shadow is an unmanned aerial vehicle operated by Marine Unmanned Aerial Vehicle Squadron 3 in the southwestern skies of Afghanistan. Each Shadow carries a camera, which surveys and streams video to higher headquarters and ground units, giving them a full perspective of the battlefield.

CPL. JUSTIN BOLING

Marine Unmanned Aerial Vehicle Squadron 3 technicians, Cpl. Jeremy Perez and Cpl. Aaron Gibson, prepare a RQ-7B Shadow for launch at Camp Leatherneck, Afghanistan, Oct. 3. The Shadow’s camera streams video back to ground commanders to plan their next strategy to quell the insurgency in Southwest Afghanistan.

III MEF assesses flooding in Thailand

CPL. JUSTIN WHEELER

A humanitarian assistance survey team consisting of 10 Marines from III Marine Expeditionary Force board a KC-130J Hercules assigned to Marine Aerial Refueler Transport Squadron 152, Marine Corps Air Station Futenma, Saturday. The team will travel to disaster affected areas in Thailand, which sustained devastating flooding from monsoons to conduct assessments and determine the required humanitarian assistance and disaster relief support. III MEF regularly trains to respond to natural disasters during exercises held on Okinawa and throughout the Asia-Pacific region. Marine Aerial Refueler Transport Squadron 152 is assigned to Marine Aircraft Group 36, 1st Marine Aircraft Wing, III MEF.

CPL. JUSTIN WHEELER

III MARINE EXPEDITIONARY FORCE / MARINE CORPS INSTALLATION PACIFIC

MARINE CORPS AIR STATION FUTENMA, OKINAWA, Japan — A humanitarian assistance survey team, consisting of 10 Marines from III Marine Expeditionary Force, departed from here for Bangkok, Thailand, to assess the flooded areas and the magnitude of assistance needed Saturday.

Significant rainfall from the monsoon season resulted in flooding, affecting 8.2 million people in 61 of 77 provinces in Thailand. The Thai government made a request to the U.S. government for assistance, and III MEF quickly assembled a team, tasking them with a four-day mission to identify key areas, scope and possible duration of subsequent support from U.S. forces.

"Recent floods have caused a lot of human suffering among the people of Thailand," said Col. John A. Ostrowski, officer in charge of the team. "We are going to see what it is that we can potentially provide with our capabilities. It's key that we provide just what they need."

The role of the Marine Corps during any humanitarian assistance and disaster response is to rapidly respond with critically needed capabilities to deliver assistance and relief to the area requiring immediate aid. III MEF regularly trains to respond to natural disasters during exercises held on Okinawa and throughout the Asia-Pacific region. III MEF's readiness to rapidly respond and provide aid to partner nations in the Asia-Pacific region was demonstrated during Operation Tomodachi, the Japan-U.S. effort to provide essential resources and aid to those affected by the March 11 earthquake and subsequent tsunami in mainland Japan.

Prior to the deployment of a large number of forces in support of a HA/DR mission, a HAST deploys to an affected area to assess and gain information essential for planning.

"This event highlights the responsiveness of III MEF in the Pacific theater," said Ostrowski. "Less than 12 hours ago, we received word that they may need assistance and now here we are about to board a plane. Like we've done for many years in the Pacific, we are deploying with today's team; today's forces for today's events."

The team is made up of subject matter experts in the fields of aviation, logistics and medicine. These planners took with them approximately 18,000 sandbags to supplement the relief efforts to those in the disaster stricken areas.

Lance Cpl. Luis A. Villa, a data network technician with 7th Communications Battalion, III Marine Expeditionary Force Headquarters Group, III MEF, is a part of the HAST and is conducting his first mission in support of a disaster-relief operation. His job is to ensure members of the HAST have communications.

"I really want to see what's going on and help out," said Villa.

Villa, who has been to Thailand before during an exercise, is excited to return and help the people of Thailand.

Reigning champion Cherry Point holds onto 14-11 win over New River

MCAS CHERRY POINT

The Cherry Point Eagles made two goal-line stands against their rival air station, New River, sealing a 14-11 victory over the Blue Knights in the "Battle of the Air Stations" at the Varsity Football Field at Cherry Point Oct. 11.

The game was a rematch of last year's championship game, which Cherry Point won after making a huge fourth quarter comeback.

"This game is between the last two champions this league has had," said Bryant K. Searcy, the athletic director for Cherry Point. "Cherry Point is the reigning champ, and New River won it the year before."

Strong defense from both sides sent the teams into halftime scoreless, with the first score not coming until the mid-third quarter when a Cherry Point running back scampered 15 yards across the goal line for an easy touchdown.

"There is so much learned from games like this," said Lederrick G. Hunter, head coach of the Cherry Point Eagles. "There is so much history between these two teams. We know how to play them and them us. This game truly showed that we are battle tested."

Cherry Point later scored their final points of the night with a pass to the tight end, followed by a successful two-point conversion.

"We started slipping a bit toward the end but our defense really showed its resilience," said Hunter. "We are going to go back to the drawing board and figure out ways to correct what needs to be corrected."

The key factors to the Eagles victory included a combination of both strong defensive stands and great running from Cherry Point's running back Timothy H. Johnson.

"I never let the rivalry get to me while playing this team," said Johnson. "This is just another game and another team acting as a speed bump on our team's way to perfection and a repeat championship. Today's game has showed us where we need to tweak our game play."

Cherry Point, now 5-0, looks to continue their quest for perfection with two more regular season games remaining, while New River will try to regroup. After the game, the two teams of Marines shook hands and huddled together as one in the middle of the field.

"We represent an air station; they represent an air station," said Johnson. "Today it was the best of New River against the best from Cherry Point. Today we were the better team, but this is football, any team can win any day. You just have to go out there and act and play as professionals."

From the clinic:

Cold weather exercise, it can be done!

DR. KIMBERLY LAZARUK
NAVAL HEALTH CLINIC CHERRY POINT

Just because the weather has gotten colder doesn't mean you need to forgo your favorite outdoor exercise. It does, however, mean you need to take some extra time to prepare.

With October being National Physical Therapy Month, it's a good time to re-focus on activity goals and "move forward", the slogan for this month. Here are a few tips adapted from the Mayo Clinic to ensure your outdoor exercise is not frozen in time:

- Dress in layers – start with a thin layer to draw sweat away from your body. Next add an insulation layer, like a fleece. The final layer should be waterproof yet breathable. Don't forget about a hat and gloves.
- Stay hydrated – just because you may not feel hot doesn't mean you're not losing fluids during your exercise. Hydrate before the activity and keep hydrating during and after the activity.

- Remember sunscreen – even though it's cold out, the sun can still cause sunburn, so protect exposed skin with sunscreen, at least 15 SPF and labeled "broad spectrum".

- Consider the wind – factor wind chill in to your decision to exercise outdoors, remembering that as you move you create wind and thus could make it colder than the thermometer reads. It's also a good idea to begin your exercise going into the wind to avoid the extra chilling effect at the end of your exercise.

- Listen to your body – if you start to feel numb or a stinging sensation, get out of the cold and gradually warm up the area. If improvements are not felt, seek medical assistance.

By following these simple tips you can exercise outdoors even as the temperature drops. Always be sure you are safe to exercise regardless of the weather by consulting your health care professional before beginning an exercise program.

Cherry Point Halloween Hours

Regular door-to-door trick-or-treating in the housing areas will be from 6-9 p.m. on Halloween night, Oct. 31, which will coincide with the trick-or-treating schedule in Havelock.

Law enforcement and fire department personnel will provide safety for the little ghosts and goblins throughout the housing areas, and there will be an increased presence of patrols in each housing area throughout the evening as well.

Electrical safety in the home

SPECIAL TO THE WINDSOCK
CHERRY POINT FIRE AND EMERGENCY SERVICES

Safety Tips

- Replace or repair loose or frayed cords on all electrical devices.
- Avoid running extension cords across a doorway or under carpets.
- In homes with small children, unused wall sockets and extension cord receptacles should have plastic safety covers.
- Avoid overloading outlets. Plug only one high-wattage appliance into each receptacle outlet at a time.
- If outlets or switches feel warm, frequent problems with tripping circuits, or flickering or dimming lights occur, call a qualified electrician.
- Place lamps on level surfaces, away from things that can burn, and use bulbs that match the lamp's recommended wattage.

FACTS & FIGURES

- 41 percent of home electrical failure

fires involved electrical distribution or lighting equipment in 2003-2007.

- In 2003-2007, 53% of electrical failure home fires involved other known type of equipment. The leading other known type of equipment involved in home electrical failure fires were caused by washers, dryers and fans.

- U.S. fire departments responded to an average of 25,200 reported nonconfined home structure fires involving electrical distribution or lighting equipment in 2007. These fires resulted in 270 civilian fire deaths, 1,050 civilian fire injuries, and $663 million in direct property damage.

- Some type of electrical failure or malfunction was cited as factor contributing to ignition for 72% of electrical distribution or lighting equipment home structure fires.

"I Don't Know How She Does It" is a comedy-drama and family fare about working mothers.

Sarah Jessica Parker ("Sex and the City," "Failure to Launch") stars as Kate Reddy, an overworked financial executive, who must juggle her mega career with her full family life that includes a husband and two mischievous young kids.

Kate devotes her days to her job with a Boston-based financial management firm.

At night, she goes home to her adoring and easy going, recently downsized architect husband Richard, played by Greg Kinnear ("The Last Song," "Green Zone"), and their two young children.

It is a non-stop balancing act, and the same one that Kate's best friend and fellow working mother Allison, played by Christina Hendricks (TV's "Mad Men"), performs on a daily basis.

Torn between business meetings, bake sales, and her kids' head lice, the overwhelmed Kate has trouble balancing her job, the kids and romance.

So when Kate receives a new major account that will require frequent trips to New York, and Richard also gets a new highly desired position, both will be spreading themselves even thinner.

Complicating matters for Kate is her charming new business associate Jack Abelhammer, played by Pierce Brosnan ("James Bond" series, "Mamma Mia!"), who proves to be an unexpected source of temptation.

Co-starring are Olivia Mann ("Date Night") as Momo Hahn, Kate's driven colleague; Kelsey Grammar ("Swing Vote") as Clark Cooper, Kate's boss; Seth Meyers ("MacGruber") as Chris Bunce; and Jane Curtin ("I Love You Man") as Marla Reddy.

Douglas McGrath ("Infamous," "Emma," "Company Man") directed this fluffy piece, which screenwriter Aline Brosh McKenna ("The Devil Wears Prada," "27 Dresses") adapted from Allison Pearson's era-defining 2002 hit novel.

"I Don't Know How She Does It" is a somewhat funny but lame look at the universal dilemma of working mothers and family life in our modern society. This movie missed its mark and plays out more like a sit com for television.

"IDES OF MARCH" (R)

"Ides of March" is a thrilling political drama about loyalty and betrayal, sex and power.

The storyline takes place during the frantic last days before a heavily contested Ohio presidential primary where an idealistic staffer gets a crash course on dirty politics during his stint on the campaign trail.

George Clooney ("The American," "Up in the Air," "Michael Clayton") plays Pennsylvania Governor Mike Morris, a slick and charismatic politician who is just days away from the Ohio Democratic primary in his bid for president.

Ryan Gosling ("Drive," "Crazy Stupid Love," "Blue Valentine") stars as the ambitious Stephen Myers, a young and brainy but very naïve and idealistic up-and-coming campaign press secretary, who finds himself involved in a political scandal that threatens to upend his candidate's shot at the presidency.

The stellar ensemble cast includes: Philip Seymour Hoffman ("Moneyball," "Doubt") as Paul Zara, Morris' trusted veteran campaign manager; Paul Giamatti ("Hangover II," "Sideways") as Tom Duffy, campaign manager for the conservative Senator Pullman, Morris' opponent;

Evan Rachel Wood ("The Wrestler") as Molly Stearns, a young and pretty campaign intern; Marisa Tomei ("The Lincoln Lawyer") as Ida Horowitz, a pushy investigative New York Times reporter; and Jeffrey Wright ("Source Code") as the powerful North Carolina Senator Thompson.

Also appearing are Max Minghella ("The Social Network") as Ben Harpen; Jennifer Ehle ("The Adjustment Bureau") as Cindy Morris; Gregory Itzin ("Law Abiding Citizen") as Jack Stearns; and Michael Mantell ("Thank You for Smoking") as Senator Pullman.

George Clooney ("Leatherheads," "Good Night, and Good Luck") directed, co-wrote the screenplay and co-stars in this political election piece adapted from the 2008 play Farragut North by Beau Willimon.

Supported by an outstanding and brilliant cast, this movie proves again that Clooney is a very talented filmmaker; and that Gosling is due for some accolades.

"Ides of March" is a terrific sophisticated, engrossing and cynical political drama set in the world of dirty politics.

"THE DREAM HOUSE" (R)

"The Dream House" is a psychological thriller and suspenseful horror yarn about a family that unknowingly moves into a home where grisly murders were committed.

Some say that all houses have memories. But for one man, his home is the place he would kill to forget.

Daniel Craig ("Cowboys & Aliens,") stars as Will Atenton, a successful New York writer and publisher who quit his high power job in Manhattan to relocate his family to a quiet place in the country.

When moving his wife, Libby, played by Rachel Weisz ("The Lovely Bones," "The Fountain"), and their two young daughters into a small New England town, Will discovers that the country holds just as much menace as the big city.

As they settle into their new life, they soon discover that the beautiful and quaint little house they moved into has a very brutal past and was once the site of a savage murder.

Apparently the whole town is under the belief that the murder was done by the hands of the husband who survived.

Naomi Watts ("King Kong," "The International") co-stars as Ann Patterson, their mysterious neighbor, who seems to have known the victims, fills Will, who is investigating the tragic story, in on all the gruesome details about the slaying of a devoted mother and her two children.

Will and Ann try to piece together the haunting puzzle and must acknowledge that the killer is still on the loose and that the family could be the killer's next target.

Jim Sheridan ("My Left Foot," "Brothers," "In America," "The Boxer") directed this twisted horror tale, a whodunit that unravels as weird and disturbing images and people start appearing to the clan's patriarch.

"Dream House" is a supernatural but disappointing, less suspenseful and effective thriller not quite up to par for director and his talented cast.
